

“The Svalbard nature offers unique sceneries. These mighty impressions can only be captured - and reflected through genuine art.”

Painter Olaf Storø lives permanently in Longyearbyen and stays here most of the year. He visited Svalbard first time in 1989 - and fell in love with the landscape, the nature and the light. He decided in 2003 to live here permanently.

A studio by the seaside, including a litographic press was opened in 2000. Here visitors are welcome to watch a permanent sales exhibition. Storø also offers special arrangements for groups, like guided tours in his studio - where he will demonstrate the litographic processes. He also offers arranged outdoor trips where he will be guiding you through the breathtaking landscapes of the area. On request he will make an unique litography - as a memory for you to take home.
